OLD CHINA DEFIES THE WORLD.

TAKU FORTS FIRED BY ROYAL ORDER

The Forts on Both Sides of the Pei Ho at Taku Are Occupied, But Communication By Water With Tien-Tsin is Threatened, the Railway and Telegraph Being Already Destroyed---Nothing Heard of the German Force that Started to Pekin---Chinese Reported to be Firing on the Foreigners in Tien-Tsin.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Berlin, June 19.—It is reported that the railway and telegraph line between Taku and Tien-Tsin are destroyed. The water communication is also threatened. A semi-official dispatch from Cheefoo states that at the time of the sending of the dispatch, the Chinese were firing into the foreign settlements at Tien-Tsin. He adds that nothing has been heard from the German detachment that was sent to Pekin, or the legations at the capital, which were reported destroyed. The German gunboat Iltis lost three men killed and seven wounded at the storming of Taku.

(The German detachment here referred to is the one which started to push its way to Pekin through the country, when the other detachments turned back to Tien-Tsin.)

A STATE OF WAR EXISTS.

Washington, June 19.—Although the State department will not admit it, war exists with China. The Chinese minister will not be given his passports till war is officially declared.

WORK OF A BAYONET CHARGE.

London, June 19.—A Shanghai despatch says that a great part of the Chinese garrison at Taku were killed or wounded in a splendid bayonet charge of the sailors of the allied forces. Three forts were completely destroyed by the ships.

FORTS OCCUPIED ON BOTH SIDES OF THE RIVER.

Chefoo, June 18.—The forts on both sides of the Pei-Ho are now occupied by the international forces. It is reported that the British warship Algerine, the German gunboat Iltis, and a Russian gunboat were badly damaged by the fire from the forts.

CAUSED EXCITEMENT IN JAPAN.

Yokohama, June 19.—The news of the shelling of the Chinese forts caused great excitement throughout Japan. It is reported that the powers will ask Japan to send two thousand troops to suppress the Chinese revolt. If that be true, it is probable that the Mikado's government will consent to send them. The fact that additional transports are being prepared gives color to the report.

ENGAGEMENT LASTED SIX HOURS.

London, June 19.—The admirality has received a report from Lin-Kun-Tan, dated Monday, saying that the Taku forts opened fire on the morning of the 17th, on the ships of the allied squadron. After a six hours' engagement, the forts were silenced and occpied by forces of the powers. Additional men for storming the forts had been sent on shore the previous afternoon. The British ships up the river that were engaged were the Algerine, Fame, and Whiting. The two latter captured four Chinese torpedo boat destroyers.

CHINESE DECLARE WAR AGAINST THE WORLD.

London, June 19, 3:30 a. m..—China declared war against the world when the Taku fortifications opened fire upon the international fleet. The accounts of what took place are still unsatisfactory, the best semi-official information being the dispatch received at Berlin from Che Fu. The unofficial narratives, coming by way of Shanghai, vary widely and bear internal evidence of supplementing the main facts with guess work. One dispatch says that the Yorktown participated in the bombardment. Another asserts that American marines formed part of the storming force of 2,000. An Associated Press dispatch from Che Fu, dated yesterday afternoon, says:

"The forts on both sides of Taku are now occupied. The Chinese opened fire unexpectedly. The casualties to the mixed forces were as follows: Killed, British 1; German 3; Russian 16, and French 1. Wounded, British 1; German 7; Russian 45; French 1. The Chinese torpedo boats were seized."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday, says: "The forts began firing in obedience to orders from Pekin, conveyed in a personal edict of the Empress Dowager, by advice of Kang Yi, President of the Ministry of War. Several warships were struck by shells from the twelve-inch guns of the forts. The heavy Russian losses were due to the blowing up of the magazines at Mandshurt.

"Four hundred Chinese are reported to have been killed. The Chinese, when retreating, fell into the hands of the Russian force."

The Daily Mail has the following from Che Fu: "Two of the forts were blown up. The 23 warships at Taku aggregated 200,000 tons and carried more than 300 guns."

The failure of Admiral Seymour's column and its retreat to Tein-Tsin increases, it is presumed, the peril of the legations, in Pekin, which is still isolated, although Shanghai forwards Chinese rumors that the legations were attacked by mobs, who were mowed down by machine guns and also that the members of the legations were masacred.

The situation at Niu Chwang is reported critical. The British consul at Kiu Kiang has ordered all foreigners to leave Ku Ling and Nau King Chang.

The powers are taking prompt action. Four thousand troops have been ordered to China; 10,000 French troops are waiting to embark at Siagon, capital of French Cochin China, and 3,000 to 5,000 more Russians have been ordered from Port Arthur to Taku. This re-enforcement says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, is announced in The St Petersburg Gazette, the government pointing out that Russia is sending so many troops solely for the sake of peace and humanity. The Brussels correspondent of the Standard in a dispatch dated yesterday, says: "Russia has massed 40,000 men, with seven batteries at Kiachta, with orders to proceed to Maimatichin, a Chinese town contiguous to Kiachita, and thence to advance along the telegraph route to the Mongol town Urga, 200 miles south of Kiachto, and 750 miles of Pekin."

UNIVERSAL DEMAND FOR 10 HOURS.

A Private Message Received in Charlotte Says That the National Union of Textile Workers Has Made This Demand.

Special Despatch to the Telegram.

Charlotte, June 19 —A private message received here today from New York states that Geo. Viger, of the National Union of Textile Workers, says that a demand has been made on all manufacturers of textile goods for a uniform work day of ten hours. Mill men here have not heard of the demand.

TO THE ALUMNAE AND SENIORS.

A Delightful Reception at the Normal Last Night---Large Number of Former Students Present.

Of all the delightful receptions at the State Normal and Industrial College it is safe to say that none has passed off more pleasantly than that of last night, when the faculty and senior class and many alumnae and former students met in joyous reunion. The reception lasted for three hours, and the occasion will linger long in the memory of every one present.

The reception was held in the large dining hall in the dormitory building, which had been tastily decorated with twining bramble, wild roses and ferns. The brilliantly lighted room presented a most attractive appearance. Near the entrance stood President and Mrs. McIver and Prof. and Mrs. Joyner, who, assisted by the marshals, graciously received the visitors. Every one was given a most cordial greeting and made to feel thrice welcome. The enjoyment of the occasion was heightened by splendid music furnished by the Gate City Band. Delightful refreshments were served by dainty hands.

The large number of former students present was noted and commented upon. Alumnae from every section of North Carolina, and from beyond the borders, added to the evening's pleasure by their presence.

The United States revenue cutter Onandago passed out of the Virginia Capes Sunday night, having in tow the barge Senator, which will be used in the disinfection of vessels at Havana before they leave for the United States.

WOMAN IN THE MEDICAL WORLD

HER SPLENDID QUALIFICATIONS.

Dr. Bitting-Kennedy's Alumnae Address at the Normal This Morning—Proof Cited to Show Woman's Fitness for a Professional Life—Marriage Need not Disqualify Her—May be a Wife and Mother and Lead a Professional Life if She Has the Ability—The Speaker a Splendid Example of Her Doctrine.

The exercises at the State Normal and Industrial College this morning were opened by singing the Long Meter Doxology, after which Rev. R. G. Tuttle, of the Western North Carolina Conference, offered prayer.

President McIver introduced the speaker of the occasion, Dr. Miriam Bitting-Kennedy, of Yonkers, N. Y., in a few happy words. He said the college was glad to welcome back a member of the first faculty who did so much in the work of its organization; a pioneer woman in her profession; a native of our sister State of Virginia; a graduate of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, and at present a successful practitioner.

Dr. Bitting-Kennedy read a most entertaining paper on "Woman in Medicine." The paper was very interesting, showing that woman's qualification for a position in the medical world has been recognized for centuries. Before the time of Christ women were engaged in relieving suffering in Egypt, and Homer makes mention of women physicians, paying tribute to their skill and learning.

In the year 1311 an edict was issued in France prohibiting surgeons, either male or female, from practicing until they had successfully passed an examination before the necessary officials, which shows that woman occupied a more or less important position in the profersion at that time.

The speaker stated that in all ages women have possessed qualifications to make them pre-eminent in the world of medicine, and added that marriage should be no obstacle in the way of a woman's studies.

In the old colonial days, before the science of medicine and surgery had advanced to its present stage, much of the medical work was in the hands of women, the New England mothers being the forerunners of our modern women physicians. Today there are something like 8,000 women practicing medicine in America. The first woman to attend medical lectures in this country was Elizabeth Blackwell, who was admitted to the Geneva College of Medicine, in New York State.

In 1848 a school was organized in Boston to teach women obstetrics, but it was not until 1850 that the first regular college for women was organized—the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. In 1853 this institution adopted a larger course than any other medical college in the country, and in 1869 a three-years course was adopted. Another interesting fact brought out was that the first chair in hygiene was established here. Today there are between thirty and forty co-educational medical institutions in the United States.

Dr. Bitting-Kennedy referred to the oft-repeated assertion that woman has never accomplished anything original in medicine, although she has been recognized in the profession for only a few years. She stated that man has been two or three thousand years in reaching his present position, adding that when woman has had a little more time she will add both glory and fame to the profession.

In reply to the widely prevalent notion that woman cannot be a wife and mother and at the same time occupy a place in a profession, the speaker said it all depended upon whether she had the ability.

A high tribute was paid Dr. Claribel Cone, who, as president of the Woman's Medical College of Baltimore, has done so much for the advancement of her profession. Her work has been marked by careful and painstaking research, and she is recognized as a most useful member of the profession.

The address throughout was most interesting, receiving and holding the closest attention of her hearers. Dr. Bitting-Kennedy is a very bright and attractive woman, and a charming speaker.

At the close of the address Dr. McIver made a few remarks, expressing the pleasure of the faculty, alumnae and students of the college at having this gifted member of the first faculty of the institution present on this occasion. He stated that the Normal was the first woman's college in the South, and one of the first in the entire country, to have a woman doctor as a teacher and resident physician. He said he was glad that today women all over North Carolina welcome women physicians into their midst. As illustrating the advancement of the times, he referred to the time when women were not admitted to the public schools, even in cultured Boston.

During the exercises the Gate City Band dispersed stirring and patriotic music. The performers, nineteen in number, were liberally applauded at the end of each selection.

On the rostrum sat President McIver, Dr. Miriam Bitting-Kennedy, Dr. Claribel Cone, Dr. Anna M. Gove, and Miss Oeland Barnett, of Shelby, president of the Alumnae Association.

THE EXERCISES TONIGHT AND TOMORROW.

This evening at 8:30 o'clock six members of the graduating class will read essays.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock the annual address will be delivered by Hon. David A. DeArmond, of Missouri. The address will be followed by the presentation of the constitutions to the graduates. The presentation speech will be made by Hon. John H. Small, of Washington, D. C., member of Congress from the First District. The Bibles will be presented by Bishop Rondthaler, of Winston-Salem.

THE CENSUS.

The Only Reliable News is to be Issued From Headquarters and it Will be Two Weeks Before Anything is Given Out.

Washington, June 18.—Director Merriam, of the Census Bureau, said today that the results of the work of the enumerators could not be known for at least two weeks, and it might be a month before the first bulletin is issued. He stated positively that the only news in regard to the count would be made public through bulletins issued at the Census Office. The enumerators are strictly forbidden by law to give out information of any kind in regard to their work, and if they violate this law they will be heavily fined.

The Director said that in view of this condition any figures presented as the work of the enumerators other than those contained in the bulletins of the Census Office, would be mere speculation and could be of no value. The count of the population in the large cities is practically completed, and about 15,000 enumeration districts have been reported as finished. It will require at least five days to check up the work of the enumerators, in order to ascertain the payments due them. This will be done in the various cities. When this is finished the cards will be forwarded to Washington, where the actual tabulation of returns will be begun.

Col. Bryan in Wisconsin.

Minocqua, Wis., June 18—Col. W. J. Bryan and party spent today on Kawagusaga Lake fishing. Ex-Congressman Towne left this afternoon for his home at Duluth. Railroads will run excursions for tomorrow night's big meeting, at which Mr. Bryan will speak.

Spoke in the Rain.

Mr. B. R. Lacy, Democratic candidate for State treasurer, made an outdoor speech to a good crowd at Proximity last night. Notwithstanding the fact that a drizzling rain was falling, the speaking was attended by about 300 people, who paid the closest attention. Mr. Lacy made a splendid speech, presenting facts in a plain, practical manner, and speaking for over an hour. The Proximity people were very much pleased with him.

Federal Prisoners.

Messrs. J. M. Baley and J. A. Logan, of the United States marshal's office, went to Raleigh this morning with L. F. Brady and Giles Blackwelder, two Federal prisoners convicted at Charlotte last week and sentenced to a year's imprisonment in the penitentiary. Brady is from Iredell county and has been engaged in blockading. Blackwelder is a citizen of Cabarrus county and was convicted of counterfeiting.

THE REPUBLICANS ASSEMBLE.

HANNA CALLS MEETING TO ORDER.

Met at Noon Amidst the Wildest Enthusiasm---Senator Wolcott Named as Temporary Chairman---California Will Start the Ball for Roosevelt---The Rough Riders' Army Friends Will See Him Nominated Anyway---The National Boss May Stop a Stampede.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Philadelphia, June 19 —The convention hall was promptly opened at ten o'clock this morning. As has been the case since the delegates began to gather, their whole attention is directed toward the question of the vice-presidency. The situation today appears to be Roosevelt against Dolliver. The greater part of the night was spent by the leaders of the various delegations in preparing for the fight today. It is a waiting game on both sides. Platt, serene in the knowledge that he controls the New York delegation, has decided to play for time. The present outlook is that the convention will degenerate into two factions, those of Roosevelt and Dolliver, with chances in favor of the former. Roosevelt can have it if he wants it, it appears, but he will have to want it bad enough to say that he wants it.

Platt and Quay have been outgeneraled by Hanna. The Long boom came to life under a strong influence from headquarters, and drowned out all except Roosevelt. The latter's boom is suspiciously near the ebb, but he is still on the top wave.

THE CONVENTION ASSEMBLES.

Philadelphia, June 19—The Republican National convention was called to order at noon, by Senator Mark A. Hanna, chairman of the National Executive Committee, who named Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, as temporary chairman. In taking the chair Senator Wolcott made a lengthy address. The different delegations came in with flying banners, while the air was filled with cheers. As the noted men of the party present entered the hall they were greeted with prolonged and enthusiastic applause. Hanna was especially cheered. Platt and the New York delegation were greeted with enthusiasm. Roosevelt was given an ovation.

An inspiring scene was presented as the delegates took their seats. The convention hall, with bands playing and thousands of delegates and spectators presents a thrilling sight. All the delegates were good natured and inclined to laugh at the slightest provocation.

SCENES IN THE HALL.

Fifteen thousand spectators are in the auditorium. The bright colors of the decorations, the brilliant costumes of the women, the flags and the uniforms of the marching clubs illuminated the scene. The air rings with campaign songs and old warmelodies. Dr. J. Gray Bolton opened the convention with prayer. Hanna began a speech of welcome to the delegates at 12:45.

WOLCOTT'S JOKE.

Wolcott began a long speech and referred to trusts as follows: "Whenever the Republican party is in power, there is constant talk of trusts. The Republican party has maintained its purpose of controlling them. Congress has made a careful investigation of them and will rule them."

HANNA CONTROLS SOUTHERN DELEGATES.

California will start the ball for Roosevelt. He has many friends in the delegation from this State who will not be denied the privilege of supporting him for the Vice-Presidential nomination. They say they will nominate him in spite of his declination.

Alabama is also credited with the purpose of starting the ball for Roosevelt. There is still talk of a stampede, but Hanna may stop it, as he controls the Southern delegates.

TAYLOR GIVEN AN OVATION.

Governor Taylor, of Kentucky, was called to the platform and received an ovation. There is a report afloat that Hanna and Platt have agreed that Roosevelt shall be nominated.

CONVENTION ADJOURNED.

The convention has adjourned till noon tomorrow.

POPULISTS A MOURNFUL LOT.

OPEN THEIR CAMPAIGN THIS WEEK.

Big Guns to Start out—The Recent Rains Relieve all Apprehension of a Severe Drought—Southern Pines Blackberries. The Southern Republicans' Habit of Jumping With the Feline—Greatest Year for Industrial Development.

Special correspondence of the Telegram.

Raleigh, June 19.—This morning the weekly crop and weather report issued by the government for North Carolina was given out. It says there were general rains Saturday, Sunday and yesterday, which relieved all apprehensions of a serious drought. Although vegetation had suffered considerably, it is thought that no permanent damage to the staple crops occurred; all were well cultivated and in condition to respond immediately to favorable rains by vigorous growth. The outlook is now very encouraging. The rainfall was too heavy over all counties west of Rutherford and Burke, where lands have been damaged by washing, and some crops, chiefly grains, beaten down; in fact over all counties west of the Blue Ridge mountains dry weather and sunshine are now required to enable farmers to clean crops and complete the grain harvest. The rainfall averaged an inch and a half above the normal for the State. The temperature was uniformly above normal until Saturday, but the week unfortunately ended too cool.

The bulk of the wheat and winter oats have been cut; harvest in the west has been delayed by wet weather, and besides many fields in that section are not yet ready. The yield of wheat will be very large, oats were damaged by dry weather. Cotton is small, but looks healthy and vigorous; squares are forming freely; some reports of injury by lice were received from southern counties. Corn is growing rapidly, with some early varieties in silk and tassel; much of the crop has been hilled or laid by. Tobacco plants have all been transplanted; some irregularity in stands and damage by insects have been reported, but generally the outlook for the small crop planted is favorable. Gardens suffered most severely from the drought, but vegetables appear to be plentiful. The shipments of Irish potatoes from the east continue heavy. Melons are doing well. The fruit crop generally will be very abundant in spite of much dropping; cherries and blackberries are ripe, and early peaches are ripening. There seems to be a scarcity of farm laborers.

Southern Pines appears to be having its most successful peach shipping season. The shipments of cultivated blackberries are found to be profitable. They now fetch, say 8 cents a quart at Washington. It costs a cent to pick and two cents to ship, so the profit is 5 cents, which satisfies the growers, as the crop is large and easily handled. The "appendicitis fad" has well nigh ruined the grape business. Some of the best vineyards in the Raleigh section are now abandoned, and of the score which flourished a few years ago but one now remains.

The requisitions for clothing and equipments for the State guard aggregate $23,000, and the arsenal is being put in readiness to receive them. When they reach the guard the latter will be equipped better than ever before, even better than in 1890.

It was really amusing to hear the Republicans here talking yesterday about the national convention and wondering whether the North Carolina delegates would "get in on the ground floor on the Roosevelt business." It was remarked that a North Carolina Republican always tried his hardest to find out how the cat was going to jump, then held out the lash and jumped with it, or rather let it jumb with him.

The Populists are to begin their campaign actively this week, and they put in the field their heaviest guns—Butler, Cy. Thompson, Baylus Cade, James M. Mewboorne, H. F. Seawell (whom they are already calling Attorney General,) Zach Garrott and J. B. Schulken. By the way some of the Populists call the latter "Skulkin." Butler opens the ball at Wentworth next Saturday. He speaks at Raleigh July 7. He does not appear to be having much fun out of the campaign. Indeed the entire Populist outfit appears to be a mournful lot.

This has so far been the greatest year for industrial development the State has ever known. Up to date 24 cotton and 2 knitting mills have been granted charters, and along all manufacturing lines save as to tobacco there is progress. A charter was yesterday granted the Goldsboro Navigation Company, which will put steamers on the Neuse river. It is merely a return to a business of about a half century ago. Before the railroads had developed, such was profitable.

There is yet hope of securing before long a fine theatre for Raleigh. The theatrical business was, to manager and public alike, nearer satisfactory last season than ever before, but yet the need for a high-class theatre was felt. A ground-floor one is most desirable.

The Central Carolina Fair.

At a meeting of some of those interested in the proposed fair, held last night, it was decided to effect an organization to be known as the Central Carolina Fair Association. Another meeting will be held in a few days, when more definite action will be taken. It is believed that sufficient interest has been aroused to insure the fair.

THE CHILD WITHOUT GLASSES

—when needing them, will be the woman with them—the woman with muscle-drawn, wrinkled face—the woman with lack of nerve force, wasted in younger days through weak and defective eyes. She will have many reasons to advance as to why her eyes are "bad," but will never give the true one—neglect. Most people—you included, perhaps—are extremely negligent in regard to their eyes, and very culpably so in regard to their children's. This is because the general public has literally no idea of the number and variety of eye defects. We shall be pleased to talk with you about your children's eyes. ## A BIG FIGHT IN HIGH POINT.

A Negro Defied a Train Crew Last Night and They Did Him Up—The Firm Work of Engineer Allen, Who Choked the Desperado into Submission—A Telegram Boy Under the Feet of the Crowd—Crowd Handled the Bully Pretty Roughly.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

High Point, June 19.—When the local passenger train reached here last night the newsboy who carries the Telegram for us failed to make his appearance for some time, whereupon we started to enter the car to find out the trouble But the door in the front end of the second-class car was locked. On going around to the rear end we soon found out the cause. A great big strapping negro by the name of Bud Hoskins was defying the conductor and others in the coach. It seems that he refused to pay his fare from Jamestown here and still refused when the train reached this place. Just as we found our papers we heard the negro say to the conductor, "Don't you dispute my word," repeating the threat once or twice. A few seconds after, the engineer, who had gone into the telegraph office to get orders, appeared on the scene and had the negro by the throat choking him in good fashion. The engineer said the negro cut at him with a knife which was afterwards taken from the negro and handed Mayor Cox. While the engineer held the negro by the throat, the conductor and about a dozen people who had congregated around beat the negro on the head, face and other places. It looked as if every one was trying to get first blow, some calling out, "kill him." Notwithstanding that his head and face was covered with blood from the telling wounds inflicted, and his wind shut off for quite a while, the negro managed to give his antagonists quite an interesting fight. He was finally dragged off the train by the engineer, who still held tight to his throat. Messrs. E. H. C. Field and Lewis Harris took him in custody and in a few minutes he was in the hands of Chief of Police Bennett, who was down town at the time. The negro is said to be a desperate character, having served several times on the county roads. The engineer who so manfully helped his brother train-man, the conductor, was Jack Allen, well known in railroad circles and every inch a man. It was he who pulled the ill-fated passenger train that plunged into the Yadkin river near Salisbury several year ago. The negro is confined in the tombs to await trial which will probably take place today, if the conductor, engineer and other witnesses reach here. But about the newsboy who carries our papers. We first saw him under the feet of the crowd, tangled up in the muddle. We never got to ask him if he was hurt.

THE USES OF CORN MEAL

MRS. RORER SAYS IT IS ONE OF THE BEST FOODS.

Possibilities of the Substitution of the Cereal for Wheat—Some Fine Receipes—The Nutritive Value of Corn—Griddle Cakes.

During the six months of the world fair at Chicago a corn kitchen was conducted in one section of the woman's building by Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer of Phladelphia, the well known lecturer and authority on cookery, under the auspices of the women of Illinois, a large sum having been set aside for that purpose. Cooking demonstrations were given daily, as were also lectures on the food value and properties of the cereal, and they were attended by thousands of visitors to the fair, both men and women. A Brooklyn Eagle reporter had a talk with Mrs. Rorer a few days ago on the subject of the exportation of corn, its food value and the possibilities of the substitution of the cereal for wheat.

"Enormous quantities of corn are raised in this country," said Mrs. Rorer, "and the demand from the home market has never been equal to the supply, although much of it is used in the manufacture of whiskey. The previous attempts to create a demand for our corn in foreign markets, however, have not proved a success except among the brewers. Minister Phelps tried it in Germany, but the results were not satisfactory. The trouble is, I think, that we have tried to induce the Germans and others to eat our dishes instead of inducing them to introduce corn meal into some of their dishes. That is the only way that the French people, who are the finest cooks in the world, can be induced to use corn. For generations they have used wheat and have become adepts in its manipulation. While I was at the fair we exported corn meal to Africa, Japan, the Scandinavian peninsula, England and a small quantity of corn flour to France. The Japanese use corn meal for sugar making. Great quantities of whole corn were exported for brewing purposes."

"How about the nutritive qualities of corn?" Mrs. Rorer was asked.

"Much has been written on the value of Indian corn or maize as a substitute for wheat, but the grave mistake has been made in classing it at par with wheat as a tissue builder, ignoring the fact that corn meal must be kiln dried to be easy of digestion and should have the germ removed to insure its keeping qualities. As a food for cold climates, corn is most valuable, being rich in fatty and starchy matter, two heat giving elements. When, however, the germ is removed, the fatty matter is also partially removed, in consequence of which the meal does not so quickly heat and become rancid. Beans and corn would be valuable food for the maintenance of armies. During the Franco-Prussian War the soldiers were given as a concentrated perfect food sausages made from a mixture of bean and corn meal. The American Indian by reducing corn to the finest powder and mixing with it beef or buffalo meat fibre has a perfect food in small compass to carry with him on his hunts. If the Irish peasant could be induced to substitute corn meal for his potato, he would without doubt be a much better fed individual. Personally, I am fond of corn meal and we have corn bread in our family every day, made after the following recipe.:

"Separate two eggs and add one-half cup of milk to the yolks, one and one-half cups of corn meal, one tablespoonful of butter; beat thoroughly, add one teaspoonful of baking powder and the well beaten whites of the eggs. Bake one-half hour in a hot oven. For those who do not like soft bread the batter should be poured in very shallow tins so that the bread when baked is little more than two crisp crusts."

"If there is so much more of a demand for wheat than for corn, why is not the former grown in place of the latter?"

"Because the corn soil will not produce wheat. In the West they use corn for fuel and it makes the best kind of fuel."

"Can corn meal be substituted for wheat with satisfactory results?" was asked.

"In some instances, yes. It is excellent for souffles and similar dishes. However, if we find a foreign market for our surplus corn, we must, as I have already stated, try to have the foreigners use corn meal in their food and not ask them to eat our corn bread and pancakes."

Indian griddle cakes—Scald one pint of yellow meal with just sufficient boiling water to moisten. Do not make it soft. When cool add one cup of corn flour, one pint of milk, beat and stir in three well beaten eggs; add one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake on hot griddle.

Isa Quack Doctor More Dangerous than a Quack Plumber?

When you are sick why is it that you do not peddle out the job of dosing you, to the lowest bidder? You would get it done much cheaper than your family physician would do it, but some QUACK DOCTOR would get the job. Your plumbing is of vital importance and you can no more afford to have your plumbing done by a quack plumber than to call in a quack doctor when sick.

Indian pudding—Chop fine a quarter pound of beef suet. Mix with it one pint of Indian meal. Put one pint of milk in a double boiler, add small piece of stick cinnamon; when hot, stir in the meal and suet; take from fire. Add half cup of molasses, half cup washed currants or washed Sultanas; cover and stand aside over night. In the morning add three eggs, well beaten. Turn into a greased mold or pudding bag, leaving room for it to swell, and boil or steam continually for five hours. Replenish the water as it evaporates with boiling water. Serve hot, with foamy sauce.

THE PROFESSOR.

He Was Frank to Tell the Young Man What He Thought.

H. A. Cuppy, Ph. D., who is now a sucessful editor in New York, studied at Franklin University, where he was graduated; at Oxford, England, where he got his degree, and at Heidelberg. Professor Jowett, whose "Life and Letters" are important literary contributions, was one of the most interesting personalities to Doctor Cuppy when a student at Oxford. In his collection of anecdotes about the professor he tells of a walking tour which one of the matriculates took with the pedagogue.

"It was a great thing to get an invitation to walk with the professor," he said the other day, "and the young man who was the fortunate guest was so embarassed that he was unable to carry on a sensible conversation. After they had been on the road for about thirty minutes the pupil finally spunked up courage and remarked: 'A nice day, professor.'

"'Do you really think so?' was the far-away answer of Jowett.

Another half hour passed, and the boy stammered out:

"'Nice road, professor.'

"The teacher responded: 'Do you really think so?'

"The matriculate began to boil in his bones and to get even more frightened, but he managed to again blurt out, 'Clouds seem to be filling up with rain, professor,' to which the answer was:

"'Do you really think so?'

"The two returned to the college ground and the professor said: "Well, young man, we have been walking for several hours, and everything you said has been as stupid as it possibly could be.'

"His companion replied: 'Do you really think so?'

"The professor looked at the young man a moment. Then he smiled and grasped his hands warmly. From that time on conversation never flagged during their walks." — Saturday Evening Post.

CANCER IS NOT INCURABLE

Time was when Cancer was considered as incurable as leprosy. Physicians and friends could give little relief or encouragement to one afflicted with this terrible disease. Even now doctors know of no remedy for this fearful malady; while admitting it to be a blood disease, they still insist that there is no hope outside of a surgical operation, and advise you to have the Cancer cut out, but at the same time cannot assure you that it will not return. You may cut or draw out the sore, but another will come in its place, for the disease is in the blood—is deep-seated and destructive, and beyond the reach of the surgeon's knife or caustic, flesh-destroying plasters. The blood must be purified and strengthened, the system relieved of all poisonous, effete matter before the Cancer sore will heal.

S. S. S. is the only medicine that can overcome this powerful and contaminating poison and force it out of the blood. It builds up and invigorates the old, and supplies new, rich, life-giving blood. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy; no mineral can be found in it; the roots and herbs from which it is made contain powerful purifying properties that act directly upon the blood system and make a safe and permanent cure of Cancer. It has cured thousands, why not you?

Cancer is not always inherited; your family may be free from any taint, yet your blood may become so polluted that a severe and stubborn form of the disease may develop from a sore or ulcer on your tongue or other part of your body; a slight bruise or hurt, a little pimple on the eyelid, lip or nose, a small lump on the jaw or breast, a harmless looking wart or mole, and other causes so insignificant as to attract little or no attention. If you have an obstinate sore, don't rely upon salves or ointments to cure it—begin with S. S. S. at once; it will cleanse your blood and prevent the formation of cancerous cells.

Impure Blood Invites Disease.

Mrs. R. Shirer, La Plata, Mo., writes: "A small pimple came on my jaw about one inch below the ear on the left side of my face. At first it gave me no trouble, and I did not think it was anything serious until the jaw began to swell and became much inflamed. At the same time the sore began to spread and eat into the flesh, and gave me intense pain. I tried everything I could hear of, but nothing did me any good. I then began the use of S. S. S., and after taking several bottles the Cancer healed, and there is now no sign of the disease. This was two years ago, and I am still enjoying perfect health."

Send for our special book on Cancer; it contains much information that will interest you; it is free.

Write our physicians about your case, and for any advice or information wanted; they have made a life study of Cancer and all blood diseases. We make no charge whatever for this.

THE JANUS-FACE.

In yesterday's Telegram there were two items, which, to be comprehensible to one unfamiliar with North Carolina politics, would have to be explained. One item was copied from the Washington Post, and said that Marion Butler had just returned from Chicago, where he had been in conference with certain Democrats, who they were not being stated. The other item was of a local nature and told of a conference which occurred in the McAdoo House in Greensboro Saturday night, between Butler and several Republican leaders. And there you have the life-long political policy of this Janus face—selling wherever the price is highest.

In national politics he sells his party to the Democrats—the Republicans d'd not bid. In State politics, he sells it to the Republicans, because they pay the highest. Never have a people been more afflicted by double-faced scoundrelism than have been the people of North Carolina for the past six years. We are devoutly thankful that the days of the Janus-faces seem to be passed. When the constitutional amendment shall have been effected, the end of a possibility of a recurrence of these days will have come. But the people ought not to forget them. Let them never forget.

But while the work of killing this contemptible scoundrelism has been accomplished, everything that should be done has not yet been finished. The people of North Carolina ought so to express their contempt for the arch Janus-face, so ostracise him, so spurn him, that though the occupant of a high and honorable office, it would be unpleasant for him to continue to live in his native State. He is not as good as the lowest Republican negro manipulator in the worst negro precinct in North Carolina. The latter is only a traitor to his race; the other is a traitor to his race and a traitor to friends who trusted and obeyed him. North Carolina should treat him as the Englishman did Benedict Arnold when he scorned to take the hand of the traitor. Thus should renegades be punished.

PUSH THE WORK VIGOROUSLY.

All have heard, more than once, the fear expressed that Democrats are in danger from over confidence. This may be so. We do not know. But a man always fights best when he is scared. Of course all the indications are that the amendment is certain to be carried, but, as the Charlotte Observer suggests, it ought to be carried by such an overwhelming majority that the temper of the people could not be misunderstood, that it would be so plain that the world must know, even against its will, the righteousness of our cause.

The work should be increased and pushed intermittently. The county chairman should see that competent speakers are in every nook and corner of their counties, not one time, but time and again. In 1898 certain counties had been canvassed over and over again before the campaign was formally opened. The campaign of the opposition has been one of falsehood and deception. They have done everything to poison the minds of the people; they have behind them all the engines of federal patronage and influfluence, and they are using them persistently. But they will be beaten, and their desperation knows no bounds.

The people need only a clear understanding of the amendment to make all of them favor it. It has been so flagrantly falsified that much work is needed to correct the errors.

RALEIGH LETTER.

The Telegram is pleased to present its readers with a Raleigh letter, which, after today will be a regular feature of the paper. The letter is prepared especially for the Telegram by that alert and well known newspaper man of Raleigh, Col. F. A. Olds, one of the best known and thorough newspaper correspondents in the South. This letter will be exceedingly interesting during the campaign, coming as it does from the State capital, which is also the centre of political news. By glancing through this letter daily our readers will be able to keep up with the news and political gossip of the capital and a large part of the State news as well. The Telegram congratulates itself on having secured the services of Col. Olds, and assures its readers that they will get all the news that's going.

The billy goat that chewed Mr. Long's $55 revenue stamp off a barrel of corn whiskey, instead of loading up with the contents of the barrel, is to be congratulated on his taste.

Dr. Roberts' Cure for Consumption.

Charlotte Observer.

We see in a dispatch from Boston that Dr. W. P. Roberts, professor of climatology of Dunham Medical College, Chicago, gave a talk at the Boston Y. M. C. A. last Saturday evening upon the effects of climate on those afflicted with consumption. Dr. Roberts, who is hale and hearty at 60, declared himself a "hopeless consumptive" 40 years ago. He was saved, he said, by going west and living in the open air. He asserted that under proper climatic conditions 90 per cent. of all cases of consumption could be cured. He endorsed the theory that consumption is caused by excess of moisture in the ground. Furthermore, he maintained that most of the so-called hopeless cases might be cured simply by an open-air life in what he called "immune" localities. He represented Arizona and New Mexico as the ideal localities for all the year, though a much larger extent of territory in the same region is but little inferior to the two States mentioned. If Dr. Roberts has found, in open air exercise, a cure for consumption, he has found what the serums, and all that, have failed to effect. We have heretofore taken occasion to remark, what all the world knows, that consumption, rheumatism and Bright's disease are three human ailments that have thus far baffled medical science. He who discovers a cure for any of them will prove himself a benefactor of the race.

Billy Swallowed $55.

Fayetteville Observer.

Revenue officer Z. F. Long is out of pocket $55 and by no fault of his own. A day or two ago he was stamping a number of barrels of whiskey at L. L. Stone's still at Silver Springs, near Fayetteville, and had just pasted a $55 stamp on a barrel when he was called away on some other business and on his return, after an absence of fifteen minutes, he found a billy goat chewing on the last remains of it, having gnawed it entirely off.

A Subject for Thankfulness.

A scheme for running an electric express train, on the one rail principal from Manchester to Liverpool has been under consideration by a committee of Parliament. Speed was the thing desired. It was testified that such a train could be run with safety at a speed of 130 to 150 miles an hour, but it would be hard to put on brakes to check up within 500 yards when running at a speed of over 110 miles. For this and and other reasons the committee reported against it.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

A Continuation of the Proceedings of the Asheville Session.

Reported for The Telegram.

Saturday morning was given up to a continuation of department reports.

The reports show much good work done along certain lines. The need of a free and generous distribution of good literature in prisons and convict camps was emphasized. Examples were given of benefits derived from good literature in prisons and convict camps. Need for more press work was emphasized. Many courtesies from editors were reported.

The report on organization showed an eagerness to engage in W. C. T. U. work wherever the work is presented and opportunity for organization given.

The report on prison work brought out the need of a reformatory for boys and a separation of men and women in our jails and penitentiary. It was decided to continue our appeals to the State legislature until these reforms are brought about. The report on White Ribbon, our State paper, shows a successful year's work.

Saturday evening no service was held. Some of the delegates took advantage of this to look about the city.

Sunday morning a very able sermon was preached to the convention by Dr. M. M. Vines, pastor of First Baptist church. At this service Mr. E. O. Sellars, a Y. M. C. A. delegate from Macon, Georgia, added much to the service by two solos, beautifully rendered. Sunday evening Mrs. Mary C. Woody addressed the convention at the Central M. E. church.

DEATH OF DR. BATTLE.

The End of a Useful Life—Funeral at Wake Forest Tomorrow.

Dr. A. J. Battle, who had been critically ill of Bright's disease at the home of his brother, Dr. J. T. J. Battle, on West Washington street, died at 1 o'clock this morning. The remains will be carried to Wake Forest, the old family home, tomorrow morning.

Dr. Battle was about 46 years old and was unmarried. For a number of years he had been successfully engaged in practicing medicine at Wadesboro, where he was universally admired and esteemed. Failing health forced him to retire some months ago, since which time he had been with his brother in this city, with the exception of a month spent in Florida during the past winter.

Dr. Battle was a faithful member of the Baptist church.

Rev. L. Johnson went to Wake Forest today to make arrangements for the funeral.

Will Introduce DeArmond.

Hon. W. W. Kitchin, member of Congress from this district, arrived at noon and will remain during the further exercises of the Normal commencement. He will introduce Congressman DeArmond, of Missouri, who delivers the literary address tomorrow morning.

Political Rivals.

"My left leg," said the candidate for sheriff, "was shot off in the civil war, and to-day, my friends, the bones of that leg are bleaching in the valleys of Virginia! What can my opponent say to that? I pause for a reply!"

"I can say lots to that, fellow-citizens," said the rival candidate, as he mounted the stump: "I had the rheumatism when the war broke out, but I hired three men to go and fight for me. Each man of them had his right leg shot off, and to-day—yes, to-day—the bones of those three right legs—and not one of them was as bow-legged as my friend is—are bleaching on the plains of Tennessee."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Summer Evening.

It was a warm night and the musical tinkle of silver against marble from the ice-cream place across the way could be caught by a trained ear in the unbroken silence of the front stoop where they sat.

"I'm afraid," she remarked with a speculative air, "that the management of that new ice-cream parlor have made a mistake."

"How's that?" he inquired, only languidly interested.

"Why, although the ice-cream is delicious and very cheap, they serve it with spoons instead of forks, as their exclusive patronage is accustomed to. The dishes, too," she went on dreamily, "are rather large for fashion, though"—

But her neat, boiler-iron, double-rivetted hint had struck in, and soon in the quivering glow of the electric light they were sauntering over.

Diplomatic Relations.

To-day the American Ambassador was dining with the Queen of England.

"Can anything," her majesty was exclaiming most feelingly, "ever again close the doors between these two great rival nations?"

Here the queen playfully smashed his excellency over the head with the coffee urn.

"Ain't you terrible!" she protested, and changed the subject.—Detroit Journal.

The Whirling of Time.

"Don't you like the dear old songs our mothers used to sing us to sleep with?" asked the sentimental person.

"No, sir," answered the man who has snow-flakes for blood corpuscles. "I endeavor to be consistent, and I realize that people used to keep the neighbors awake with those songs, just the same as they are doing now with obnoxious ballads, which in twenty or thirty years will be referred to by people with tears in their eyes as the 'dear old songs.'"—Washington Star.

A MARRIAGE OF INTEREST.

The Fayetteville Observer's Account of the Marriage of Mr. Blount to Miss Pemberton.

Yesterday's Telegram told of the marriage of Mr. W. Frank Blount, which occured in New York last Thursday. From the Fayetteville Observer we clip the following account of the marriage:

Married June 14th at Cohoes, New York, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Dixon, 76 Oneida St., Miss Margaret Cramer Pemberton to Mr. Warren Franklin Blount. Mrs. M. C. Thompson, the aged gradmother of the bride, and a number of relatives and friends witnessed the solemn and impressive ceremony performed by Dr. Johnson, of that place.

This announcement will be received by the people of Fayettevile with mingled feelings of regret and pleasure—with deep regret if in their wedded life Mr. and Mrs. Blount make for themselves a home away from the many who so highly esteem them; with sincere pleasure in the warm congratulations offered to them in their connubial happiness.

Miss Pemberton is a young lady of exceptional grace and loveliness of character, endowed with rare accomplishments, of exquisite taste, culture and refinement. Beautiful and sweet will be the home, indeed, over which she presides.

Mr. Blount is well known here and highly respected, both for his social gifts and for his excellence as a "man of affairs"—energetic, industrious and successful. May their felicity be without a cloud through a long and happy life.

HOW SHE SAW EUROPE.

A BRIGHT GIRL'S TRIP COST BUT $350.

But of Course She Would Practice Self-Denial and Accept Situations That She Does Not Mention—What the Tips Amounted to.

A girl went to England last summer with only $350 to her credit before the railway and steamship tickets were purchased. She visited England and Paris, had a royal good time, saw very much of England and all the wonders of the shining white city whereunto all sorts and conditions of men will gaily flock this summer, and return home with at least carfare enough to get down town. And this in spite of the warning ravens who insisted that the sum of $1,000 is absolutely necessary to enjoy a similar journey.

In the way of actual expenditure something under $70 went for a return steamship ticket; $40 more for railway fares to the port of embarkation and back again; $5 for a steamer trunk and $10 for a steamer rug; $72 purchased all the articles of new clothing really necessary for a trim and stylish appearance; $16 bought a second-hand camera of good make and in perfect order; $12 was set aside for sleeping-car tickets and incidental expenses. Then she had a clear $150 to spend on "the other side." Steamship fees "going over"—they were not large, since she required no special service from any official, but they were sufficiently generous to secure for her the best of attention—came out of the $12 mentioned above. On the return journey they were paid out of the sum of $10 set aside for just such purposes before leaving England.

A week in London cost the girl $20, sightseeing expenses, railway and 'bus fares included, and she saw everything usually seen by visitors, and very much which not everybody sees, being an experienced traveler, having "read up" London beforehand, and knowing how to look for interesting things and places. Railway and steamship transportation to and from Paris, by way of New Haven and Dieppe, cost $12. A week of Parisian sightseeing, with a simple souvenir or two, deducted $27 more from this little fund. Something over $100 remained for the six weeks still to be passed in England. The ocean voyage having been made by way of one of the "slow" routes, consumed nearly a month for passages. Railway fare from Liverpool to London and back again was included in the price of the steamship ticket, although half of the London to Liverpool allowance the girl was compelled to sacrifice because her plans took her away from the seaport town early in her visit, and didn't allow her to go back to London.

Of the $50 which remained after the railway fares and board bills had been disposed of, about half went for souvenirs, odd meals while traveling, occasional drives—at ridiculously inexpensive rates—and incidental expenses, fees and the like. As sixpence (12 cents) is regarded as quite a princely tip for a woman to give in England, while twopence or threepence is received gratefully by almost any servitor, fees did not amount to a great deal, except when viewing cathedrals, churches, and so on. Then the ordinary and expected fee amounted to a shilling, and one of these fees was necessary any and every time when anything of interest was to be seen. Even in the churches, where the placard on the doors informs the casual reader that all sums dropped in the box beneath are devoted to the restoration of the sacred edifice, or something of this kind, it is always safe to tip the verger. He invariably expects it, and the icy chilliness of his manner when the tip isn't forthcoming is more interesting to contemplate than pleasing to endure.

To inspect a large number of wonder places of the world, to spend a delightful summer and to make the acquaintance of icebergs and sea rainbows, the world-famed cathedrals and beautiful, quiet, old world places, to visit the haunts of famous men and women of genius of all ages, to leave care behind for three long, lovely months, while bringing home a fine stock of health and pleasant memories, and all for the sum of $350, is something to be proud of and grateful for.—Chicaga Times-Herald.

OSIAS BARNAY

This story is true of New York and Hungary. Only the names are changed:

When Osias Barnay became the husband of Sarah Klingman all their acquaintances on the east side said it could not lead to happiness. She was nearly twice his age, and he, scarcely more than a boy, was too handsome and impulsive, they said, to be proof against the temptations of the life he had been leading.

But then, he had been virtually on the brink of starvation, and what though the Widow Klingman had a daughter nearly eleven year old—men have clutched at a straw on slighter provocation; and nobody could say that Mrs. Klingman was not good-looking, and her worst enemies had to concede that she was rich.

Esther, the daughter, disliked her stepfather, or, rather, she despised him. It was plain to her that he had married for money; and never once in five years did she address a word to him beyond what ordinary civility required.

One day Barnay received a letter from his mother calling him home. It was now six years since he had left Budapest, Hungary, by the stern decree of his father, who had grown tired of paying debts and squaring scrapes for him. But now the father was dead, and the heart of the mother yearned for her boy again.

Osias had never gone into details to his wife concerning his antecedents.

When she saw the palace his mother dwelt in, and saw the host of servants bowing and scraping in greeting to their long-absent young master, she felt like the bride of the story who had married a pauper and discovered, just as she was getting ready for a life of drudgery, that he was a prince. Esther, too, was overwhelmed with surprise, and began to regard her stepfather in a much more favorable light.

Again two years elapsed, when who should loom up in New York but Osias Barnay. He was haggard and pale, and seemed to be laboring under some great worry.

One day shortly after his arrival he said to his friend, Andrew Munder, a lawyer:

"I need your help. Can I rely upon you?"

"To the drop of the flag. Just tell me how I can be of service."

"I want a divorce. I must have it."

Munder was thunderstruck.

"Why, your wife is in Hungary with your mother. You never mentioned any wrongdoing. Has your wife deceived you?"

"No, a thousand times no! My wife is the best, the kindest and the noblest of women."

Before he left the office Barnay told Munder this story:

"My wife's daughter, Esther--you remember how gawky and ungainly she was, and how she hated me—well, she is now eighteen, and accounted one of the most beautiful young ladies in Budapest.

"When she saw my mother's house, and recognized that I was, after all, not a 'beggar's brat,' she became more respectful, and in time we got to be quite chummy.

"One night about a month ago, when we returned home from a concert, the carriage collided with a wagon and was wrecked. I was the only one injured. Not very seriously, but enough to keep me in bed for two weeks. During that time Esther was almost constantly at my side. Her presence made me happy. I had a vague, undefined yearning for her when she was away.

"Once, when my bruises gave me intense pain and I moaned, Esther bent over me and, clasping her arms about me, exclaimed:

" 'Oh, if I could only suffer instead of you! I love you so!'

"And then I knew that I loved her, too; loved her with a boundless love that consumed me, tormented me. To check it was too late. The only salvation lay in flight, and flee I did as soon as my wounds permitted me. And that's what brought me here."

Some weeks after this interview the war with Spain broke out, and Barnay was one of the first to respond to the call for volunteers. He enlisted in the Forty-seventh regiment, and served with such distinction that he was promoted from the ranks to a lieutenancy on the field of battle.

At the conclusion of the war he returned to New York. His wife and Esther had also come from Hungary to look for him, alarmed by his long silence. But although he knew they were here he did not go near them. His heart was still in a turmoil, and he felt that his love was too mad to be trusted.

And so he pined away, each day's agony leaving him less and less strength to battle with his passion, until at length he was worn away to a mere shadow.

One day he did not appear at breakfast. And when his landlady, after waiting an hour, went to see what was the matter she smelled gas coming from his room.

When they forced the door they found him dead. The gas burner was turned on and the cracks in the door and window calked with paper.

Over his heart, in his clasped hands, was the picture of a beautiful girl.—Irving R. Bacon.

The Vicious in Boston.

"Yes," replied the Boston parent, "a boy soon acquires vicious habits if he is suffered to mingle with street boys. Once I thought otherwise, and permitted our Emerson to choose his playmates, as chance should throw them in his way. It wasn't a week, sir, until that boy, in spite of his hereditary tendencies and the careful home training he had received, was asking me hypothetical questions that simply reeked with casuistry!"—Puck.

RECONCILIATION

Seating himself upon a bench in the park Charles Leighton let his head fall wearily into his hands and gave rein to his thoughts. Six years ago this very day he had wedded the pretty Miss Marchmont. How happy they had been for a few months, and then, his mother, cold, haughty, proud of her son and her fortune, came and reproached Kathleen bitterly for ensnaring her husband, who (she said) loved another, wealthier girl, and who only married her (Kathleen) on account of her pretty face, but his heart really belonged to this richer girl.

Kathie Marchmont was young and impulsive, and without waiting to hear more she packed her few little belongings and left him, after writing a note in which she promised that he should never be troubled with her again and that he was now free to wed "the other girl."

Suddenly Leighton felt a little cold hand touch his and heard a childish voice say: "Have you got a headache too?"

Looking up he beheld the sweetest little fairy of a child clad in a soft white dress with blue ribbons fluttering in the morning breeze, who stood inspecting him with serious brown eyes.

"Yes, I have a little one," he said smiling at the serious little face before him.

In a trice she had climbed upon the settee and softly, gently drew her tiny hands across his brows. The touch of those baby fingers sent a thrill through him.

"Better?" she asked, looking at him with those wonderful eyes of hers.

Lawyer Leighton assured her that he was quite cured, and then asked where her mamma was.

"Mamma?" asked the child in surprise. "Why, mamma is writing, of course. Nurse brought me out, and," with a mischievous twinkle in her eye and a quaint shrug of her little shoulders, "I lost her."

"You lost her?" asked the lawyer.

"Why, yes," continued the child. "You know, nursey met a policeman and she had so much to say to him and I got tired playing right there, so," with another shrug, "I runned away."

"What is your name, little one?" he asked, looking down at her as she danced along at his side.

"Sunshine," came the answer, and Lawyer Leighton thought it distinctly appropriate for this golden-haired sprite.

"Where do you live, Sunshine?" he asked, but the child only said, "a big house."

"If you got lost, did not mamma teach you something to say?" he suggested.

"Oh, if I got lost," answered the child, "I must find a policeman and show him this."

"This" proved to be a little tag sewn on the inside part of her little dress. Leighton read: "Mrs. Marsh,—— Dartmouth street."

Together they started for Dartmouth street, but Sunshine soon lagged behind, and after a hasty glance around Lawyer Leighton took the pretty bit of humanity in his strong arms and bore her to her home.

There was a frou-frou of silken skirts as the door opened, and before his astonished eyes stood Kathleen, his wife.

Leighton's arms dropped helplessly to his sides as Kathleen caught the child to her breast and covered her little face with caresses.

"How can I thank you?" she began, when she recognized the man before her. The color left her face and her body grew rigid as she drew her head up proudly.

For a moment they stood thus; then with a sudden yearning the man stretched his hand toward her, saying, "Kathie."

Her tender mouth twitched a little and in the glance she flashed him he saw her eyes were filled with tears.

"Kathie," exclaimed the man, going to her, "how could you believe that wicked story? There never was but one girl in this world whom I loved or could love, and that was you. I have searched for you night and day since that terrible day when you left me. Will you not believe me that I loved you then, and love you now, if it were possible, more than ever?"

"Oh, Kathleen," pleaded he, with the child in his arms, "will you not come back to me and let me make up to Sunshine at least for the wrong my mother did you? My mother is dead and I will devote my life to you and Sunshine to make up for the injustice to you. Will you come, darling?"

"Yes, do come with nice Mr. Leighton, mamma. I love him so. Don't you—and he brought me back to you."

And Kathleen Leighton came down the stairs and was drawn to her husband's loving heart, while she whispered with the light of a great unquenched love in her eyes, "Yes, I will come."

POLLY'S DOINGS

Polly closed the door behind Miss Mason and then sank into a chair across the table from me.

"All men are workable," she began, sententiously.

"A generality," said I. "An instance?"

"I was just going to give it. You noticed Miss Mason's left hand?"

"Yes; I couldn't help it. Who is he?"

"Mr. Herrick—you know him. A very clever fellow. Almost as clever as you are, Tom." She was smiling—just a bit.

"Remarkable man," I agreed, heartily—whereat the smile increased.

"Yes." Polly folded her arms on the table and, leaning forward, gazed complacently across at me. "It's all my doing, too."

"Indeed!" I cried. "Why, you're a genius, Polly." (I know how to make her smile.) "How did you do it?"

"Well, I knew she loved him and he loved her. But"——

"You knew--but how?" I interrupted.

Polly twitched her shoulders and threw her head to one side. "Easy enough. Eva told me that she cared. And, well, you see, one doesn't need telling when a man's in love."

I ignored the down-thrown gauntlet. Perhaps she would smile again.

"But he, poor fellow, hadn't the heart to make known his heart—I saw that. They were up here day before yesterday. While I was making ready to brew some tea a little idea jumped up in my head. You know they come to me that way sometimes."

I nodded.

"I didn't stop to think, but turned around to face them with the teaball dangling from one finger.

" 'By the way,' I said, 'I suppose it won't be out of the way for me to congratulate you two?'

" 'What for?' asked Eva, looking up. She was surprised. Mr. Herrick just looked blank.

" 'Oh, you're too innocent, I said with a sly smile—I really did it well, Tom. 'Perhaps it hasn't been announced yet, but everybody knows just the same. I think it is splendid! You two were made for each other!'"

"You ought to have seen them, Tom. Eva turned white, and then began to flush. Poor Mr. Herrick was red from the first. He seemed a trifle agitated."

Polly smiled reminiscently, then went on:

"He got up from his chair rather hurriedly. 'But--but'—he gasped.

" 'Oh, the water!' I cried, whirling about. 'It's boiling over!' It wasn't, of course, for I hadn't lit the lamp beneath the kettle yet. But they were too excited to notice that.

" 'Excuse me--but—you know,' started Mr. Herrick.

" 'Just my luck!' I broke in, lifting the lid of the caddy and looking in. 'Not a leaf of tea in the house. I'll have to run down and buy some. Excuse me a minute.'

" 'Permit me,' said Mr. Herrick, eagerly. 'I'll go down and get it.'

" 'What, trust a man to buy tea for me!' I shook my head. 'Never! I always want to see it myself.'

"I pinned on my hat and then went down to the flat below and talked to Mrs. Nelson for half an hour about her rheumatism. When I came back up they were looking happy enough, so I knew all was well. I acted as though I didn't know anything had happened, and finished making the tea."

"Yes, but the tea?" I queried. "You didn't bring any up."

Polly looked at me half-pityingly.

"Why, you goose, you. I'd filled the caddy up only the day before."

"But didn't they notice?"

"Notice?" she laughed. "They were noticing nothing then but themselves. Besides, I wouldn't have cared if they had."

Polly gazed at me, smiling meditatively, for over a minute.

"Well?" said I.

"Well, that's all. Only, when they left, Eva ran back and told me what had happened. Of course I was kind enough to be surprised. To-day she came up to show me the ring. There's the story."

"Polly," I said once again, with conviction in my voice, "you're a genius."

"Why, yes," she admitted, complacently.

"But, do you know," she went on, speaking rather mournfully, it seemed to me, "I'm half sorry now I did it."

"Sorry—why?" I was unsuspicious.

"Because"—there was a teasing smile in her eyes, but her voice was very demure--"because I rather wanted him myself."—Leroy M. Scott, in Chicago Journal.

Nothing that has ever yet been produced in the way of summer footwear for men will begin to compare for comfort, coolness and durability with shoes made of tan vici kid. If you have never tried shoes made of this material, ask any man who has worn them and you will find him ehthusiastic in their praise. But it is possible to have too much of a good thing and we find ourselves overstocked with certain lines of tan vici shoes. So in order to reduce the surplus, we have cut some fifty pairs of the $3.50, $3.00 and $2.75 grades down to $2.48. You can see the samples of these in our north window the rest of this week and if you are going to need another pair of shoes this summer it will be worth your while to stop and take a look at these. WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSOM, VA., Dec. 21.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

ROOSEVELT'S REFUSAL.

Doesn't Want to Have the Nomination but Does Not Absolutely Refuse.

Philadelphia, June 18—Governor Theodore Roosevelt has made as specific a refusal of the nomination for Vice-President as he could possibly make in view of the fact that the nominating convention has not met and few conventions have caucused. Standing in a small room facing a crowd of newspaper men this afternoon he made the following statement regarding it from a couple of sheets of manuscript:

"In view of the revival of talk of myself as a vice presidential candidate, I have this to say:

"It is impossible too deeply to express how touched I am by the attitude of those delegates who have wished me to take this nomination. Moreover, it is not necessary to say how thoroughly I understand the high honor and dignity of the office, an office so high and so honorable that it is well worthy the ambition of any man in the United States. But while I appreciate all this to the fullest, nevertheless, I feel most deeply the field of my best usefulness to the public and to the party is in New York State, and if the party should see fit to renominate me for Governor, I can, in that position, help the national ticket as in no other way. I very earnestly ask that every friend of mine in the convention respect my wish and my judgment in the matter.'"

ANNOYED HER MAJESTY.

TOBACCO LOST HIM THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

How the Duke of Teck Smoked a Pipe at Windsor Castle—Even the Prince of Wales Could Not Appease the Queen.

The Duke of Teck was a great smoker, and seems to have been privileged to smoke on all occasions, and even in the houses of his illustrious reations, when other guests had to be most strict in their conformity to the rules of tobacco.

I myself have seen the Duke of Teck driving through the Strand, accompanied by the princess, his wife, and by the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, puffing furious clouds from a huge cigar between his teeth. I have also seen him, on the terrace of Marlborough House, standing amid a group of his royal' highness relations of both sexes, not only smoking, but the only one smoking. Indeed, it is said that this habit of his for a cigar lost him the Order of the Garter, which he very nearly received at the time of his daughter's wedding.

There had been a family dinner at Windsor, and the Tecks were present, and had also been invited to sleep at the castle. The rooms assigned to the duke and duchess were in close vicinity to those of her majesty. Now, the queen never was a lover of tobacco. Her late husband was not much of a smoker. She was brought up in an age when tobacco never came near a lady's drawing room, and certainly remained very far from her boudoir. Her son, the Prince of Wales, and his brothers, are all smokers, but it is stated that they never smoke in their mother's presence, except in the open air.

On the particular night of the family dinner mentioned above, after the queen had retired to bed, and when presumably she had made up her mind that Francis of Teck should be told the following morning at breakfast that he should have the garter, she suddenly detected the smell of smoke. Her majesty at once touched the bell beside her couch.

"Who dares to smoke in the castle?" exclaimed the queen.

The two bedchamber women gazed at the great old lady with fear and amazement, but they were soon ordered to find out, and for the next few minutes there was a dreadful commotion in that particular corner of Windsor castle.

There was ringing of bells, tramping of sentries, rousing of deputy assistant chamberlains from their beds, a hasty summoning of the lord high controller of the household and scurry into garments on the part of equerries and deputy gold and silver sticks in waiting. "The queen smells smoke!" was bandied from mouth to mouth. "Tobacco smoke!" At last the smell was traced, and definitely traced, to the apartment occupied by his highness, the Duke, and her royal highness, the Duchess of Teck. The lower court officials, such as equerries and chamberlains, scarcely ventured to hammer the ducal door, but the grand controller of the household did venture to knock, and he hammered with such effect upon the panels that the Duke of Teck himself opened the door, attired in pajamas somewhat short in ankle, and, awful to relate, a short briarwood pipe in full operation clenched between his teeth.

His highness looked surprised, naturally. Then he asked what was the matter, and the chorus of royal myrmidons yelled: "'Tis the pipe, your highness, the pipe. Her majesty smells smoke!"

But the next morning, when the Prince of Wales ventured to remind his royal mother of the Duke of Teck and the garter, he was peremptorily silenced with: "No, Bertie, no; I am very angry with him. He woke me up with his awful tobacco." And the Duke of Teck had to die garterless!—London Letter.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

NEWS AND GOSSIP.

What is Going on in Greensboro—A Week of Events.

The Postal Telegraph Company opened a new office in Danville yesterday.

Mr. Frank K. Trogdon was the first census enumerator in Greensboro to complete his work, finishing yesterday afternoon.

The Republicans had a gathering at Thomasville last night. Speeches were made by Messrs. J. R. McRary and Z. I. Walser, of Lexington, who spent yesterday here.

A number of the business houses of the city are decorated with the Normal colors—white and gold. Among the most attractively decorated stores are those of the Bee Hive, J. W Scott & Co; the Harry-Belk Brothers Company, the Sample Brown Mercantile Company, D. Bendheim & Sons, J. M. Hendrix & Co., Johnson & Dorsett and Thacker & Brockmann.

Advertisers.

Harry-Belk Bros. have an interesting ad. in this issue.

Brown mentions a special ribon display in the regular space, on page eight, today.

C. O. Forbis' ad. came in too late to be changed today, but a new ad. will be found in his space, on page six tomorrow.

Henry Hunter advertises table and cooking butter and vegetables.

Pearce advertises gasoline. Read his ad.

Caldcleugh has fine dinner sets and lamps.

Mr. Blackburn for Sheriff.

Mr. W. J. Blackburn, of this city, will go before the Democratic county convention for the nomination for sheriff. Mr. Blackburn is well known and has a great many friends throughout the county, and he will doubtless develop much strength in the convention.

So far no other candidate has announced himself for the nomination, though the names of several gentlemen, including Messrs. John W. Cook and J. F. Jordan, have been mentioned. It is understood that Sherlff Giimer would not accept a renomination under any circumstances.

To Fill an Engagement in Mississippi.

Prof. P. P. Claxton will leave tomorrow for Sampson county to conduct a teachers' institute, from which place he will go to Mars Hill, in Madison county, to conduct an institute for the teachers of several counties. The latter part of the month he will leave for the University of Mississippi, where he has an engagement in the summer school.

To Masons and Pythians.

The Masons and Pythians of the city will meet at the residence of Mrs. Doak, on West Washington street, tomorrow morning at 7:30 to act as pallbearers and escort the remains of Dr. A. J. Battle to the depot. The remains will be taken away on the eastbound train for Wake Forest.

Two Petitions in Bankruptcy.

John H. and D. E. Kester, of Winston, each filed a petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the Federal Court at this place today. The schedule of the first named places his liabilities at $18,910.28, with assets to the amount of $385. The liabilities of the latter are $16,727.78, with $1,095 assets.

Last Meeting of the Season.

The Euterpe Club will hold its last meeting of the season at the residence of Mr. George Donnell, on West Gaston street, Friday evening. After the musical exercises a reception will be tendered complimentary to Prof. C. R. Brown.

We are selling ladies $1.25 Oxford Ties this week for 63c, and $2.00 and and $2.50 ones for 88c. They are a little out of style, but just what some people want—they are big bargains.

News and Observer.

The State Teachers' Assembly did well to elect Prof. J. Allen Holt president of the Assembly. He is one of the first men in North Carolina in ability to teach, in public spirit, in service to the educational work of the State, in brains and character. He represents the work of the academies in our school work, the institutions that reach more aspiring young men than the colleges and send to the colleges their best students. The election of Prof. Mims, of Trinity College, as vice-president is likewise an admirable selection. He is one of the best scholars and best men in the college work of the State. It is a matter for congratulation that Superintendent Mebane is to continue as secretary and treasurer. He is a model officer.
